STEVE REICH

Steve Reich was born in New York in 1936 and had early lessons in keyboards and drums. After graduating in philosophy from Cornell University in 1957, he studied composition at Juilliard (1958-61) and Mills College (1962-3) where his teachers included Milhaud and Berio. In 1970 he studied African drumming at the University of Ghana, in 1973 Balinese Gamelan with Balinese teachers in America, and in 1976-7 traditional chanting of Hebrew Scriptures in New York and Jersualem.

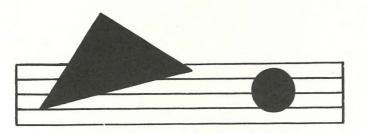

Reich formed an ensemble of three musicians in 1966 to perform his own music. This group, Steve Reich and Musicians, has now grown to eighteen- and sometimes as many as forty- members and has performed throughout North America and Europe. Their performances routinely sell out. Reich himself during this period has steadily emerged to his present eminence as a major modern composer.

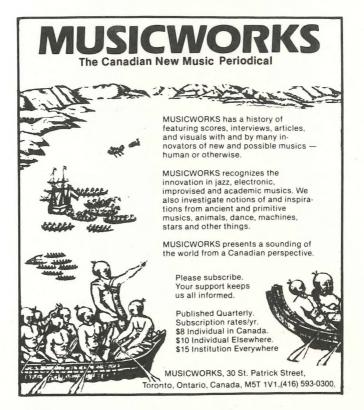

VERMONT COUNTERPOINT

Vermont Counterpoint is scored for three alto flutes, three flutes, and three piccolos, plus two solo lines in each of which the soloist plays, one at a time, all three instruments. For this performance, Robert Aitken has taped all nine ensemble parts plus one solo line and here adds the live solo line as the final touch.

Steve Reich writes of Vermont Counterpoint, "The live soloist participates in the ongoing cointerpoint as well as more extended melodies. The piece could be performed by eleven flutists but is intended primarily as a solo with tape. Though the techniques used include several that I discovered as early as 1967 the relatively fast rate of change (there are rarely more than three repeats of any bar), metric modulation into and out of a slower tempo, and rapid changes of key may well create a more concentrated and concise impression."

Phillip Werren was born in 1942 and studied composition at Yale and Princeton with Roger Sessions and Milton Babbitt. Werren is the winner of many awards and commissions including a Fulbright Fellowship and Canada Council Grants. His music has been performed across Canada and the United States, in China, Japan and Mexico and heard on national broadcasts of CBC-FM. Dance music plays an important part in Werren's oeuvre and he is working on important commissions for Sadlers Wells in England and Triskelion Dance Company in Montreal. Currently he is professor of composition, electronic music and 20th century music at York University where he has taught since 1977.

Of himself, Werren writes, "...As a composer, I feel a very strong bond with western art musical tradition and hope, through my own compositions, to rebuild a bridge to the past a bridge which I feel many artists prefer to neglect."

HURRICANEUM

Hurricaneum is a sonic play about forces and their effects. It is formally closer to an 18th century pastorale than to a 19th century tone poem. There are four sections:

I The Tempest

II The Eye

III Leaving the Eye

IV Aftermath

During the piece, the players perform certain actions. These actions are both cause and effect; their purpose is to elucidate the music which passes through the musicians and which causes them to behave certain ways.

The Eye is the core of the work. The "chord" is basically Ep-ish and diatonic. I have used many different tunings in the tape to give movement and breath by creating infrabeat structures in space. The pianos, although both in equal temperament, are tuned to A438 and A442.

In the last section of the work, players are no longer "in ensemble": the strings are playing music from the Eye section while listening to their personal tape of the Eye - they are, quite literally, out of time with each other and out of tune with the audience. The pianists, responding to percussion cues, create a chordal grid upon which the piece hangs, precariously, until the end.

This piece is dedicated to my friends. They have had to put up with me through this nonsense. My next piece will be called Stillness.

JAN JARVLEPP

Born in 1953, Jan Jarvlepp is an Ottawa composer and cellist. He was educated at the University of Ottawa, McGill University (composition and electronic music with Alcides Lanza) and received his Ph.D. in 1981 from the University of California, San Diego. There he studied composition and time perception with Roger Reynolds and Will Ogden. Time Zones was his Ph.D. dissertation.

Jarvlepp has been a member of the SONOR Contemporary Ensemble in San Diego, Pauline Oliveros' Sonic Meditations Group and the McGill Symphony Orchestra. His publications include articles on Berio and Ligeti, and he has been three-time award winner in the P.R.O. Canada Composers' Competition (1980,81,82). He is currently a member of the Ottawa Symphony, and performs as a freelance cellist.

TIME ZONES

TIME ZONES

Time Zones was composed in the spring and summer of 1981. The most essential element of this piece is that of temporal relationships. Pitch, dynamics, timbre and space are of secondary importance and serve to enhance temporal content. The players are divided into five groups each with its own timbral and spatial characteristics. The groups are:

- l upper woodwinds (flute and clarinet)
 in a straight line
- 2 lower woodwinds (three bassoons) in a triangle
- 3 brass (two trumpets and trombone) in a triangle
- 4 percussion (five players) in a pentagon
- 5 strings (two violins and two cellos) in a rectangle

Each group is assigned a kind of temporal material which differs from the others permitting a simultaneity of temporal events surrounding the listener. Therefore, traditional melody and harmony don't exist at all but are replaced by temporal events and the resultant "friction" caused by the simultaneous occurrence of dissimilar temporal activities.

In the second half, the players are regrouped into new temporal configurations or "time zones" making possible new compositional procedures.

JOHN REA

John Rea was born in Toronto in 1944. He studied composition with John Weinzweig and Gustav Ciamaga at the University of Toronto, and with Milton Babbitt at Princeton University. The recipient of many awards and commissions, John Rea has written music in several genres: solo, chamber, music-theatre, orchestra, ballet, opera and electronic music.

Besides his activities as a composer, Rea has lectured and published articles on 20th century music and since 1973 has taught composition and music theory at McGill University. He is also a founding member of two musical societies formed in Montreal in 1978: "Les événements du neuf" dedicated to the performance of contemporary works, and "Traditions musicales du monde" which promotes the appreciation of non-Western music through concerts and other activities. He is composer-in-residence for the City of Mannheim, Germany, from January to June, 1984.

TREPPENMUSIK

Treppenmusik ("staircase music") is the German word used to describe Wagner's Siegfried Idyll due to the unusual location of its first performance as a Christmas/ birthday present for Cosima. In my composition, however, this title alludes to the paradoxical staircases - ascents and descents to somewhere/nowhere - and other strange loop figurations found in the engravings and lithographs of the Dutch graphic artist, Maurits Cornelius Escher (1898-1972).

Symmetries, canonic-like repetitions, metamorphoses, the familiar made fantastic - underlying techniques and principles articulated through his experiments with perspective and tesselation, all combine in Escher's work which also came under the influence of mathematics. Indeed, he seems to have created in his compelling images another sentient world with its own albeit impossible celestial mechanics.

As my dear friend Vivier has recently written, "Time is a geometrically variable space. Different planes exist side-by-side, are intersected and transformed by the marvellous laws of celestial mechanics...Music has brought about the magic of time in human life. For a few brief moments, human beings transgress the divine order of celestial mechanics...Thus, humans construct their own machines for travelling through time: music." ("Pour Gödel" in Trafics, Montreal, 1982).

Treppenmusik is my very own time-machine travelling through a world according to Escher.

ROBERT AITKEN

Flutist and composer Robert Aitken began flute studies privately as a child and later continued with Nicholas Fiore in Toronto and Marcel Moyse in France. Although he has studied with such outstanding flutists as Rampal, Gazzelloni, Andre Jaunet and Hubert Barwähser, Aitken considers Mayse to be his most significant influence in the field of flute performance.

Aitken's dedication to contemporary music is a deep and longstanding one, for which he has received awards from the Canadian League of Composers and the Canadian Music Council. He is co-founder and artistic director of New Music Concerts. Over the years he has built a fine reputation as a performer of new music, giving many works their premiere performance in festivals and concert halls around the world. Tonight marks the Canadian premiere of this version of Vermont Counterpoint with a new recording of Mr. Aitken on flutes, produced in cooperation with the CBC.

Competition for Young Composers

Each year P.R.O. Canada presents $6,000 to composers under 30 in its annual P.R.O. Canada Young Composers' Competition. Twenty-two composers have received awards in the first five years of the competition. These winners have gone on to distinguish themselves in the world of music.

Their works have been recorded on the Melbourne label (JEAN PICHÉ and ROBERT ROSEN) and CBC's RCI label (JOHN BURKE). DENYS BOULIANE was named Composer of the Year by the Canadian Music Council in 1983.

Others have had their works applauded abroad. FRANCIS CHAN won second prize in the Béla Bartók International Composers Competition in Hungary in 1982; works by JEAN PICHÉ have been performed at the Bourges International Festival of Experimental Music in France; ROBERT ROSEN was a finalist in 1982 in the Indiana State Contemporary Music Festival Orchestral Composition Competition; "Fusion" by PIERRE TROCHU was chosen as the Canadian submission in the World Music Days festival in Denmark in 1983.

Several winners have received commissions: HARRY KIRSCHNER from the Montreal dance company Le Groupe de la Place Royale; JEAN PICHÉ from the CBC, New Music Concerts and from the Vancouver New Music Society; JOHN BURKE from the CBC Vancouver Chamber Orchestra; ROBERT ROSEN from the Banff Centre.

Other winners who have distinguished themselves are LINDA BOUCHARD, TIMOTHY BUELL, RICHARD GIBSON, KEITH HAMEL, JAN JARVLEPP, JEAN LAPLANTE, DAVID S. LYTLE, JOHN OLIVER and DOUGLAS SCHMIDT.

You are invited to join the vanguard of Canada's exciting young composers. Deadline for entering the P.R.O. Canada Young Composers' Competition is April 30 and application forms are available from P.R.O. Canada's three offices.
